DISCUSSED AT DINNER

The Regular Meeting and Banquet of the Commonwealth Club of New York—John J. Knox on the Best Money—The Opposite Views Expressed by George S. Coe.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE POST-MAILER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—About two hundred gentlemen looking for promotion filled the large dining hall of Morello's on West Twenty-ninth street last evening and partook of an elaborate dinner. It was a regular meeting of the Commonwealth Club, and after the banquet the gentlemen lighted their cigars and listened to addresses on "The Best Currency, Including the Legal Tender Question." Mr. John J. Knox, President of the National Bank of the Republic and ex-Comptroller of the Currency, made the first speech on the topic of the evening. Among other things he

"The best money in the world is a piece of gold, whether stamped at the mint in this country, or England, or Australia, or France, or Russia, or Japan. The day has gone by when gold was not the best money in the world, and which is a monopoly can be authorized, and we trust the day will never come when either Congress or the State will legalize what can be described by no other phrase than high-handed robbery. The experience of the people of this country has shown that a fixed quantity of treasury notes—a promise to pay, secured by 30 cents of gold reserve, or its equivalent in gold, silver and copper—has not proved to be the resources of this great country pledged for their prompt redemption supplemented by a bank note currency, first made secure without question and issued by institutions in every portion of the country is a volume; changing as much as possible at different seasons of the year with periods of activity and inactivity in business—is the best currency, however defective it may be, for which we can hope in this generation. If we have a similar system to that which we now have of Government currency and bank currency ca-continued with a prospect of greater elasticity in the future, it is, perhaps, as presently stated, the least desirable of all currencies. We do claim that this is the ideal currency, but we do not insist that it is better under the circumstances that the currency of this country should consist of both bank and treasury notes rather than treasury notes alone."

Mr. Geo. S. Coe, President of the American Exchange National Bank, spoke in opposition to the plan. He said that before the issue in August, 1901, of the 500,000,000 of demand notes, which Mr. Morgan had suggested, the bank had been together and offered their services to the Government. The organization of banks the country over had declined to do so. Philadelphia and New York. Some of them dated back to the Revolutionary War. There was no Government system. They were a Government system. They furnished the Government $100,000,000 issued by Howell Cobb, sold at a profit of $500,000. Money was supplied at the rate of $5,000,000 a week to buy clothing for soldiers and to buy food for the army and war supplies and every week that money was supplied it was used to buy more food. The issue of the demand note in August stopped that. The issue of the demand banks were asked to take these notes and the money went into the sub treasury and stayed there. The banks could have continued to issue the demand notes and the money would have been in the more circulation. But that issue of notes was stopped and resulted in suspending specie payments. In January all the gold had been paid out and no more came in. The true basis of banking is specie. The true basis of banking is specie. The true basis of banking is specie. It existed in human society. The one thing that might be called a bill of exchange

"It was not money. There is no money in it," he said. "The Government did not recognize it. Paper was not money because it had no value. It was worth $7,000,000 every day. But the money used by the Government was not money. The country to resume specie payments was not money. The Government, but the Government and increase of

INDUSTRY AND PRODUCTS

The Government was not powerful to create money. Its function was to power the industry and products of the country. There was no trouble about regulating banking matter as to regulate the whole duty in the hands of the Government. If there was no Government, the financial affairs of the country would be in the hands of banking and let society do its own thing. The Government was not to the idea of Government management.

Knox's idea was very ingenious," he continued.

Mr. Croe was frequently applauded during his speech. He said:

"Knox arose to say he indorsed all that has been said."

"For twenty years," continue Mr. Knox, "has been the gammat at whose feet we have learned the art of currency. But we must take things as we find them. We are not to make things up. The little Club made up of honest men."

OTTAWA, Ontario, Jan. 22.—An alien labor bill was introduced in the House of Commons yesterday by George Taylor, member for Brockville. The bill is founded on an act passed by Congress in 1885, as told by the introducer. Its title is "an act to prohibit the importation and immigration of foreigners and aliens under contract or agreement to perform labor in Canada." Mr. Taylor is a Goernment supporter, and it is thoroughly understood in political circles that the Government will use all the "push" they can privately to get the bill through both Houses. The clauses of the proposed law cover every kind of labor, the only exceptions are actors, artists, lecturers, singers and personal and domestic servants. The penalty for each individual offence is a fine of $1,000.

THE ELEVATORS FOR SALE.
An Examination of Them to Be Made for New York Parties.

There has been a rumor for several days that New York parties have secured an option on the properties of the United Elevator Co., but so many people lost money on the stock manipulation made on the strength of the option given the English syndicate, recently, that it has had no effect on the market, and investors have no faith in it, believing that when there is talk of an option it is the time to sell rather than to buy. From the indications now there may be an option soon, but that there is at present is a mistake. There have been negotiations, and any one who wants the elevators and is willing to pay a reasonable price for them can probably secure them without much trouble. Capt. D. P. Slattery, who has been active in the projected sale of the properties, stated this morning that a representative of the syndicate which now proposes to purchase, will be here this week. The gentleman, he says, represents five New York banks and is in every way responsible. He could not say whether there would be an option or whether, if there is one, it would be supported by a forfeit. The examination to be made will, he says, embrace every feature of the elevator business, including river transportation, the export business from St. Louis, its future and all other matters.

SHE "TOOK" THE STAND

Because She Thought That Was What She Was Instructed to Do.

A funny little scene convulsed the Court of Criminal Correction this morning. The case on trial was one against Max Sutton, a negro, for stealing a pair of pants. A pleasant faced young woman was a witness for the prosecution. John I. Martin was special counsel for the State. When he called his witness the young woman became greatly agitated. She had all appearances never been in a courtroom before and was much confused. "Take the stand," said Mr. Martin, waving his hand in a pompous manner in the direction of the witness seat.

The young woman did not understand, and stood hesitating by the attorneys' table. Seeing her predicament, Mr. Martin said: "Take the stand. Take that chair up there." Again he motioned. This time the witness understood—that is, she thought she understood, and did her best to follow out her instructions. Stepping forward, with assurance fairly beaming from her rosy cheeks, she caught the chair by the rungs and with both hands lifted it proudly from the witness stand and set it down in front of Mr. Martin without saying a word.

Everybody laughed. Judge Campbell smiled broadly, and Mr. Martin could not conceal his merriment. The young woman's face was a puzzle. She realized that she had done something wrong, but could not for the life of her tell what it was. Picking up the chair again she gazed helplessly around the court-room for a moment, then turned to Judge Campbell and with a world of innocence in her voice, faltered in her broken German:

"Den vat mus' I do mit dem?"

A deputy sheriff came to the rescue and placed the chair on the stand. The witness understood, and did her best to follow out her instructions. Stepping forward, with assurance fairly beaming from her rosy cheeks, she caught the chair by the rungs and with both hands lifted it proudly from the witness stand and set it down in front of Mr. Martin without saying a word.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN HOME.

The Twenty-first Annual Meeting Held To-day at the Institution.
The twenty-first annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Association was held to-day at the Woman's Christian Home, 1814 Washington avenue. The morning session began at 10 o'clock and lasted until 11:30. The meeting was opened with the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." Rev. George E. Martin read from the Scripture and offered up a prayer. Miss Florence Sage executed Chapin's "Valse Brillante" in admirable style on the piano. The reports from the Woman's Christian Association were then read. They were all of a most encouraging character. Rev. Geo. C. Adams, D. D., followed with an address on women's work. Mrs. A. D. Cunningham sang a soprano solo. The reports of the Woman's Christian Association showed it to be in a most satisfactory condition. Rev. F. G. Robert, D. D., at the conclusion of the reports on the home made an interesting address. "Come to Me," a baritone solo, was well rendered by Mr. Charles Weber. The session closed with a mandolin solo. The members of the association and their friends who were present then sat down to a lunch which had been prepared for them.

After dinner the meeting was reconvened. Miss Florence Sage, rendered List's "Love's Dream," a piano solo. Rev. C. F. Madden, D. D., made an address. The Secretary then read the reports from Memorial Home. Prof. Well rendered a violin solo in fine style. The next order of business was the reading of the reports of the Woman's Training School. "Hear My Prayers," a soprano solo by Miss Lottie was very pleasing. Rev. John Matthews then spoke in his usual happy way. The meeting closed with an address by Mrs. Dr. Matthews.

The Firemen's Ball To-night.

The fifth annual grand ball of the St. Louis Fire Department Pension Fund & Relief Association, to be given at the Merchants' Exchange Hall this evening, promises to be one of the most elaborate ever given under the association. The Committee of Arrangements is headed by Assistant Chief Thomas Finnerty, and the committee as a whole is an excellent one. The object is one of the most worthy, the receipts going to the pension fund, and for the relief of injured members. In late years every effort has been made to make the ball as select as possible. This effort has been increased this year.

Mrs. Edward M. Henderson committed suicide yesterday in New York City by jumping from the roof of a four-story house on Second avenue. She had been wealthy, but her husband had squandered the money and she was unable to obtain respectable employment.
